DR. W. B. BIZZELL A. & M. PRESIDENT

New Official Was President of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton.

Announcement was made in Houston late Tuesday afternoon that Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the State College of Industrial Arts at Denton, has accepted the presidency of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, tendered to him by the board of directors at their recent meeting held in Dallas. He will assume charge as soon as he can be relieved of his present duties.

Dr. Charles Puryear, who has been acting president since Colonel R. T. Milner resigned, will resume his duties as dean of the college.

In reply to an inquiry, Colonel E. B. Cushing, president of the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, confirmed the report of Dr. Bizzell's selection and his acceptance.

Proceeded Deliberately.

"The board has proceeded deliberately in the selection of a president for the college," said Colonel Cushing, "fully realizing the importance of electing to that position a man who will be able to guide the affairs of the college in the time of increased usefulness which is now at hand."

"This election and that of Mr. Ousley to the head of the extension department is in harmony with the plans of the board to place the Agricultural and Mechanical College in the front rank of institutions of its class in the United States, and to place its affairs in the hands of men of broad culture, each especially qualified for the duties he is to perform. Texas need not be satisfied with any but the highest class of talent and ability in its educational institutions. When the plans of the board are realized we will not see our young men going in large numbers to Cornell, "Boston Tech" and other Eastern colleges, because they will have as good or better opportunities at home.

Adapted to Presidency.

"Mr. Bizzell is peculiarly adapted for the presidency. He is a native of Texas, educated at Baylor University with post-graduate degrees from Chicago and Columbia Universities. He is in early middle age, earnest in purpose and vigorous in action. His life has been spent in educational work and he thoroughly knows the game. His success at the College of Industrial Arts at Denton proves his ability and frees the future at the Agricultural and Mechanical College from any uncertainty. Incidentally, his election will promote the cordial relations which have always existed between the State's great and growing industrial institutions—the college for young women at Denton and the one for men at College Station. We feel gratified that Dr. Bizzell has accepted the position and will look with confidence to his successful administration."—Houston Post.

RUSSIA MAY RETALIATE BY STORMING BERLIN

These Two Cities Seem to be the Objective Points of Two Great Armies—Continued Reports Come of Russian Victories Over Austrians. The Allies Had an Even Break With the Germans in Today's Fighting—German Troops Are Showing Signs of Weakness—Germany Urging Italy to Come In, Saying if the Allies Win She Can Never Control the Mediterranean—Reported That Turkey Has Declared War on Austria.

(By Associated Press.)
London, Sept. 2.—News of the battle on the Oise has reached here from two different sources, and it is the first definite information since the Mons engagement.

Military experts say if the Germans are successful and advance, their road becomes increasingly difficult owing to natural features and artificial defenses.

It is evident the allies are playing to exhaust the enemy while the Germans are repulsed in Prussia.

They claim success elsewhere and that the Austrian menace to Russian Poland is apparently removed.

If this is true the Russians can begin to converge for the march on Berlin via Koenigshtette.

The Times correspondent says the Russian reports, while meagre, have always proved true.

Germany is renewing the pressure on Italy by declaring the allies' success would end Italy's hope of dominating the Mediterranean.

The Belgian west coast and the French northwestern coast are clear of Germans.

Russian Loss Confirmed.

(By Associated Press.)
London, Sept. 2.—St. Petersburg advices say the Russian general staff frankly admits disaster to two corps, including the loss of three generals. Official casualties of the British expeditionary force are 153 killed, 790 wounded and 4,200 missing.

The Chronicle's correspondent says the third British battle raged Sunday and Monday in the upper Oise valley, where the Germans recklessly sacrificed men endeavoring to break the British defense. The British lost heavily and gave way slightly, but maintained a stubborn defense. The battle continues.

The French on the right and center maintained their lines.

The French are accused of abducting fourteen women.
